We are so excited that children's author Frank Cottrell-Boyce is supporting CAFOD's Summer of Hope campaign as part of our Coronavirus Appeal.

Join in!

- In just one word, or one sentence, tell us what has given you hope.
- It might be an object, an activity, a person, a phrase, or an idea.
- You can use pictures or designs to illustrate your words.
- Frank will read what you have said you are hopeful about. He will then write a short piece based on some of the things children have told him.

Please ask permission from an adult to email your ideas to schools@cafod.org.uk before Monday July 27th. If you've put your ideas down on paper and you want to send a photo of it, that's fine too! Don't forget to include your first name, your age, and your town.

Please note, by sending in your submission (whether written or a drawn) you give CAFOD permission to reproduce it for use for this project, and others, including media work.
